General Statement of Duties

Distinguishing Characteristics

This class is the third level of management in a four part series. Employees in this class perform a combination of "core" managerial duties and executive level duties and responsibilities, however the duties and responsibilities are predominately "core" managerial in nature. Executive Manager is a combination of operational and strategic manager but is predominately operational. The Executive Manager is typically the highest level manager of smaller organizations (such as some Mayoral initiatives) or is a high level manager within a charter department that has responsibility over multiple complex functional or operational areas, but still reports to a higher level executive. This class is distinguished from the Executive class which is predominately strategic in nature and is found in major or "key" agencies and departments. It is also distinguished from the Director class which is operationally, functionally, and/or strategically focused with primary emphasis on operations.
