General Statement of Duties

Collaborates with the Director of Learning and Development to drive talent management, employee development strategies, and training management. Partners with human resources service teams.

Distinguishing Characteristics

There are three general management classes (Manager, Director, and Executive) and specific individual management classes. The Manager is a first level management class. A Manager oversees work groups/areas within a division or agency and is generally responsible for supervising first or second line supervisors and/or individual contributors. A Manager position is operationally and/or functionally focused.

The Director is a mid-level management class. A Director manages a division or agency and is generally responsible for supervising managers, supervisors, and individual contributors. A Director position is operationally and/or functionally focused as well as strategically focused.

The Executive is the highest level of management class in the city other than appointees or elected officials. An Executive directs multiple divisions and is generally responsible for supervising directors, managers, supervisors, and individual contributors. An Executive position is strategically focused.

The Learning and Development Manager class is distinguished from the Executive Director of the Office of Human Resources that directs a comprehensive, city-wide Human Resources Office by establishing a multi-year vision and strategic plan for the organization while ensuring alignment with the city’s broader organizational and human resources goals and objectives and ensures the organization accomplishes annual goals and initiatives.

Guidelines, Difficulty and Decision-Making Level

Guidelines are in the form of stated objectives for the section, unit, function, or project.

Work assignment is generally unstructured and employee is responsible for assigning and supervising a variety of functions to achieve the objectives of the section, unit, or project. Duties performed involve weighing and evaluating factors requiring judgment, analytical ability, and problem solving.

Employee is responsible for simultaneous coordination and supervision of several functions, programs, or projects in various stages of completion.

Level of Supervision Received & Quality Review

Under managerial direction, the employee is responsible for achieving the work objectives of an organizational unit(s) within the scope of established guidelines and the mission of the agency or department. Employee is expected to resolve problems that arise in the normal course of the work.

Work is reviewed for soundness of judgment, feasibility of decisions, and work production based on defined performance standards.
Interpersonal Communication & Purpose

Communication at this level is primarily internally focused and involves establishing and maintaining effective working relationships with team(s), related work areas, and higher-level managers. Provides guidance and interpretation of the organization’s policies, procedures, and standards. Provides information to higher level managers and elected and appointed officials.

Contacts are of a non-prescribed nature involving the negotiation and resolution of problems and where exceptional degrees of discretion, judgment, and knowledge are required. Contacts where the exchange of information, support, influence, and cooperation may have a very significant impact on the division, programs, and/or policies of the organization.

Level of Supervision Exercised

Manages a work group(s) within a division by supervising supervisors and/or individual contributors.
