

Alternative Approaches to Temporary Housing or Encampments for Unsheltered Homeless Individuals

February 4, 2019

Councilwoman Robin Kniech
Denver City Council, At-Large

Overview of Questions

1. Why have some other cities done an “emergency declaration?”
 - Is there a need for a declaration in Denver/Colorado to take certain actions?
2. What type of temporary housing are other cities doing?
 - what role are the cities specifically playing?

Purpose/Benefits of Emergency Declarations Elsewhere

- Access to “emergency” state funds (California)
 - Exempt from building and zoning codes
- * Not all cities taking new approaches to temporary housing have needed/done a declaration*

Cities That Did Declare an Emergency

- San Diego, California
- Los Angeles, California
- Oakland, California
- Olympia, Washington
- Portland, Oregon

Cities that Did Not Declare an Emergency

- Madison, Wisconsin
- Kansas City, Missouri
- Seattle, Washington
- Eugene, Oregon

Discussion on Emergency Declarations in Denver (Colorado)

Overview of Approaches in Other Cities

San Diego, California

Los Angeles, California

Compassionate Communities Pilot (2016-17)

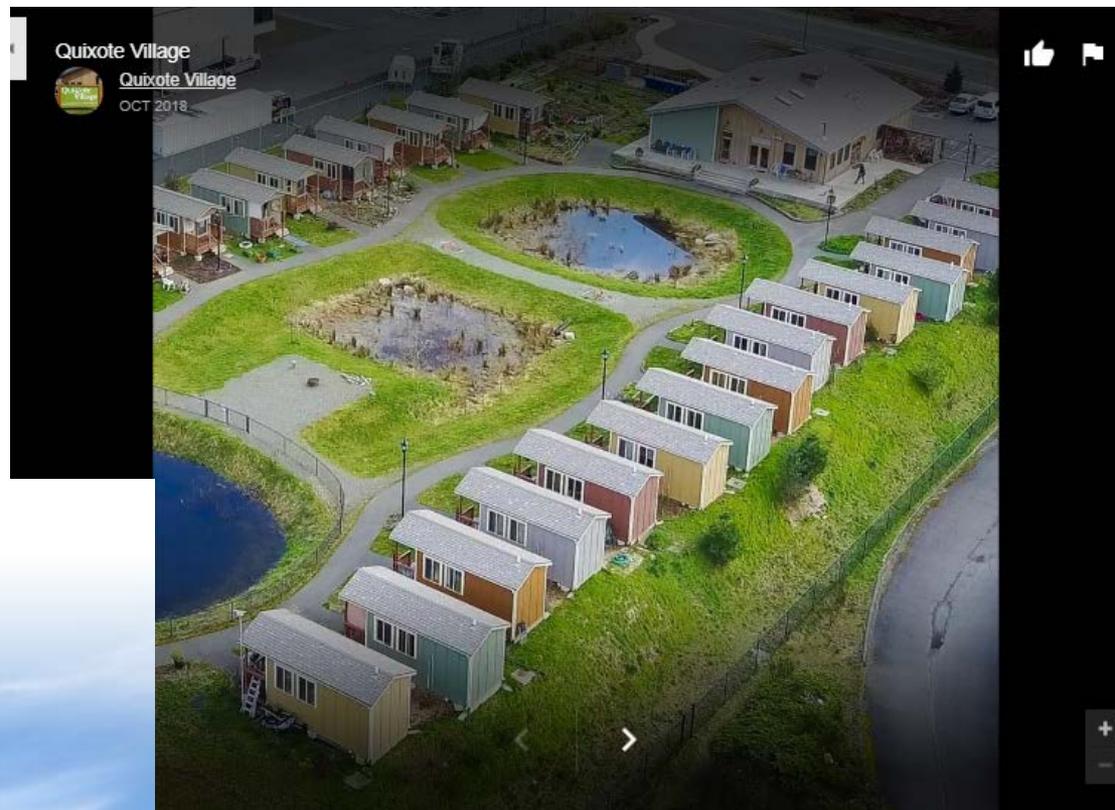

Oakland, California

Oakland, California

Olympia, Washington

Office of City
Councilwoman
Robin Kniech

Portland, Oregon

Madison, Wisconsin

Kansas City, Missouri

Seattle Materials

Seattle City Permitted Villages:

- <https://www.seattle.gov/homelessness/city-permitted-villages>

Report on First Three Permitted Encampments in Seattle:

- <https://homelessness.seattle.gov/city-releases-assessment-of-first-three-permitted-encampments/>

Seattle, Washington

Eugene, Oregon

Other Cities

- Detroit, Michigan
- Austin, Texas
- Ithaca, New York

Detroit, Michigan

Austin, Texas

Austin, Texas (Cont.)

Ithaca, New York

Councilwoman Robin Kniech

Robin.Kniech@denvergov.org

720-337-7712

Office of City
Councilwoman
Robin Kniech

Appendix

