

Denver Moves: Pedestrians & Trails Fall 2018 Comment Summary

During the fall of 2018 the Denverright planning process concluded its public comment period. Denver Moves: Pedestrians & Trails received approximately 90 comments from a variety of sources, including Registered Neighborhood Organizations, Mayor’s Advisory Committees, City Council Members/Offices, and private individuals.

Comments were collected into a matrix and divided into sections and overall themes. Table 1 below highlights the general themes of the public comment.

Denver Public Works was encouraged by the overall support of the visionary elements of the plan. Some of the comments provided valuable guidance on strengthening or clarifying the language of the plan. In some instances, minor typographical errors were identified and corrected accordingly.

At its core, Denver Moves: Pedestrians and Trails intends to guide the future construction of sidewalks, crossing improvements, and trails throughout the City and County of Denver. This prioritization is a direct result of the feedback collected over the course of this two year planning effort.
