Michael B. Hancock, Mayor of Denver, sent a letter on October 16, 2020, to the residents of Denver, CO, regarding the COVID-19 pandemic. He mentioned the impact of the pandemic on the city and the state, and he encouraged the residents to follow the health guidelines and wear masks.

He also thanked the city staff, first responders, and essential workers for their efforts during the pandemic. He mentioned that the city would continue to support them.

The mayor also announced the launch of a COVID-19 relief fund, which aims to provide financial support to those affected by the pandemic. The fund will be used to support small businesses, laid-off workers, and other individuals and organizations impacted by the pandemic.

The mayor also thanked the United Way of Metropolitan Denver for their support in organizing the relief fund.

He concluded his letter by expressing his gratitude to the residents of Denver for their resilience and perseverance during these challenging times.
