

ELECTIONS DIVISION

2008: A Significant Year

The division conducted a highly successful November 2008 election for the citizens of Denver under close public scrutiny, following a year-long planning effort.

Additional achievements included:

- ★ Implemented strategic plan to retool the division's organizational structure, staff responsibilities, records management and business processes.
- ★ Implemented new voting model based on maximum voter convenience.

- ★ Recruited and trained 2,000 election poll workers to assist voters at 185 polling places; designed new poll worker training including hands-on practice.
- ★ Developed new ballot processing procedures and purchased additional equipment, allowing Denver to be the first large county in the metro area to finish ballot counting on election night.
- ★ Moved to a new facility providing increased access for the public and staff.

- ★ Reinstated a Spanish language advisory group (ACCESO) for outreach to Spanish speaking voters.

The new voting model, adopted in January 2008 after extensive research and discussion with a citizens' advisory panel, offered voters three different ways to vote: by mail, at 13 early voting locations across the city or on Election Day at assigned precinct polling places.

Voting was by paper ballot, with each voting site offering an electronic voting machine to be in compliance with federal law. This model resulted in substantial cost savings for the city in comparison to all other voting models studied.

It publishes City Council ordinances and resolutions, and maintains city records including all City Council proceedings and ordinances, rules and regulations, bonds and permits, contracts and official appointments. The City Clerk also publishes updated versions of the City Charter and the Denver Revised Municipal Code.

COMMUNICATIONS DIVISION

The reorganization of the Clerk and Recorder's office included creation of a communications unit at the start of 2008 to ensure that the citizens of Denver would receive timely and user-friendly information, particularly with regard to elections.

Communications also handles media relations and community relations, and serves as liaison for candidates and campaigns, elected officials and other government agencies.

In 2008, the new Communications Division:

- ★ Planned & executed a major public education campaign for Elections, including:
 - ★ Voter registration brochure (English & Spanish versions)
 - ★ Brochure on 2008 vote model (English & Spanish versions)
 - ★ Bus ads and Spanish language radio ads
 - ★ Redesign and re-launch of Elections websites (English and Spanish)
 - ★ Design and production of informational mailings to voters
 - ★ Poll worker recruitment marketing materials
- ★ Created brochure for Public Trustee, explaining foreclosure process to homeowners (English & Spanish versions)

2008 ANNUAL REPORT

Office of the Clerk and Recorder
City and County of Denver

Stephanie Y. O'Malley
Clerk and Recorder

The mission of the Office of the Clerk and Recorder is to efficiently and kindly respond to each customer who has cause to interact with the department for any purpose; diligently abide by mandates prescribed by federal, state and local laws and rules; and effectively and efficiently plan, prepare, and execute all steps necessary to fairly afford the voting public its right to enfranchisement.

CLERK'S MESSAGE

2008 was a year of momentous change for the Clerk and Recorder's Office. Following a voter-approved change to Denver's Charter creating an elected Clerk and Recorder in early 2007, I was elected to the position.

I had a huge challenge in taking over and leading the department. Although faced with a number of large hurdles, we've made significant strides in increasing transparency, efficiency, productivity and accountability. After reorganizing the Clerk and Recorder's office, we revised many business procedures. We instituted standard accounting practices and brought the agency into alignment with the city's invoice and payment structure.

Although an independent agency, the Clerk and Recorder's Office has been responsive to the Mayor's budget measures designed to weather the recession. The agency has voluntarily fully participated in city budget reductions.

I am proud to say the Elections Division carried out a very successful election in November 2008 for Denver's voters. The division also implemented my vision of "Denver Votes." To the outside observer, it may not look difficult to deliver a presidential election, but it requires a massive and sustained planning effort. With a new strategic plan, we delivered an election without significant problems.

We also set and met internal productivity goals in the Records, Recording, City Clerk and Public Trustee divisions, resulting in cost savings and enhanced service to customers. Employee morale also significantly improved, as shown in the city's annual employee survey.

I take great pride in our progress and hope you will find this annual report both useful and informative.
