

Chelsea Rosty

Chief of Staff

Chelsea Rosty serves as the Chief of Staff for Denver Economic Development & Opportunity (DEDO) at the City and County of Denver. Rosty grew up in Grand Junction, Colorado and is a graduate of the University of Wyoming. While in Laramie, Chelsea competed on the UW Rodeo team and studied Marketing and Economics. She has 16+ years of experience in economic development, marketing, and community development and holds a Master's Degree in business administration.

Prior to her Chief of Staff role, Rosty was DEDO's Director of Communications and Marketing and prior to that, the Director of Business Innovation & Tourism for the City of Montrose, CO. She managed the city's Main Street Program where historic preservation and local business vitality were primary focuses. Additionally, Chelsea oversaw communications, marketing, tourism, and guest services for the city.

She loves running, camping, reading, writing and animals. Hidden talent: roller skating. Chelsea used to deliver food on roller skates as her high school job! She and her family enjoy travel and have been on many great adventures around the world.
