THIS IS A PUBLIC DOCUMENT

General Statement of Duties

Leads and sets strategy for a centralized human resource function for the City. This position oversees HR Managers and staff servicing city agencies. Partners with agency leadership and subordinate managers to plan and implement HR solutions that are aligned to the various business goals of each agency and their unique challenges.

Distinguishing Characteristics

There are three general management classes (Manager, Director, and Executive) and specific individual management classes. The Manager is a first level management class. A Manager oversees workgroups/areas within a division or agency and is responsible for supervising first or second line supervisors or individual contributors. A Manager position is operationally and functionally focused.

The Director is a mid-level management class. A Director manages a division or agency and is responsible for supervising managers, supervisors, and individual contributors. A Director position is operationally and functionally fo-cused as well as strategically focused.

The Executive is the highest level of management class in the city other than appointees or elected officials. An Executive directs multiple divisions and is responsible for supervising directors, managers, supervisors, and individual contributors. An Executive position is strategically focused.

The Deputy Director of the Office of Human Resources class is distinguished from the Executive Director of the Office of Human Resources that directs a comprehensive, city-wide Human Resources Office.
