Engineer-Architect Manager Senior - CE2782

THIS IS A PUBLIC DOCUMENT

General Statement of Duties

Manages multiple, distinctive functional professional work groups that include implementing work plans based on annual goals and the strategic plan; resolves citizen, operational, and management issues; and achieves goals while ensuring resources are utilized appropriately.

Distinguishing Characteristics

There are four general management classes in the engineering series, which includes the Engineer-Architect Manager, Engineer-Architect Manager Senior, Engineer-Architect Director, and Engineer-Architect Executive.

The Engineer-Architect Manager is a first level management class. A Engineer-Architect Manager oversees a professional engineering or architectural work group within a division and is generally responsible for supervising first or second line supervisors and individual contributors.

The Engineer-Architect Manager Senior is between the first level manager and the mid-level management classes. The Engineer-Architect Manager Senior has multiple areas of responsibility over distinctive work groups and has independent supervision over each area. Additionally, an Engineer-Architect Manager Senior is generally responsible for supervising first or second line supervisors.

The Engineer-Architect Director is a mid-level management class. Engineer-Architect Director manages a division and is generally responsible for supervising managers, supervisors, and individual contributors.

The Engineer-Architect Executive is the highest-level management class in the engineer series. An Engineer-Architect Executive directs multiple divisions and is generally responsible for supervising directors, managers, supervisors, and individual contributors.

The City Engineer is a one incumbent class and the position is responsible for the financial, operational, and administrative functions of all engineering activities within the city.
